

Handgun 'outlaw' is urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal crime commission today urged all states to outlaw handguns except for law enforcement and military officers and to seize all those in civilian hands.

The commission also said states should no longer impose jail sentences for the crimes of gambling, marijuana use, pornography, prostitution and private sexual acts between consenting adults.

States should consider repealing laws against those activities, the commission said.

The recommendations were contained in a 318-page report by the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals.

The commission chairman, former Delaware Gov. Russell W. Peterson, delivered the report to Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson today. The 22-member commission, including present and former governors, state and local police officials and judges, drafted the recommendations after a two-year study financed by a $1.75-million federal grant.

In a statement prepared for a news conference, Richardson said the study "may be the most important report on crime control ever compiled in this country."

He said the Nixon administration "is neither endorsing nor opposing the hundreds of specific standards and goals contained in the report."

But over-all, he added, "it strikes a reasonable balance and sets out reasonable goals."

In a strong attack on handguns, the report said "the commission believes that the violence, fear, suffering and loss caused by the use of handguns must be stopped by firm and decisive action."

The commission said that no later than Jan. 1, 1983, all states should prohibit the possession, sale, manufacture and importation of handguns except for law enforcement and military officials.

It recommended no change in present laws regulating rifles and shotguns and said weapons collectors should be permitted to keep inoperative handguns.

"The commission believes that private use and possession of handguns infringes on the right of the American public to be free from violence and death caused by the use of handguns," the report said.

Acknowledging that many citizens keep guns for personal protection, the commission said "a handgun in the home is more likely to kill a member of the family than it is to provide lifesaving protection from burglars and robbers."

In support of the recommendation, the commission cited FBI statistics showing that more than half of all reported murders were committed with handguns.

Petroleum allocation outlined

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration today outlined an eight-point program for mandatory allocation of petroleum products but said it had no immediate plans to implement the proposal.

"We are not now planning to implement a mandatory program at any specific time in the foreseeable future," said President Nixon's top energy aide, former Colorado Gov. John A. Love.

"We are attempting to develop the best program, however, in recognition that circumstances in the future may require such a program," he said.

Love said the mandatory allocation program was being offered to give the public the opportunity to consider the problems involved and to make comments on how to help remedy the problem.

He welcomed debate over the proposed program, saying that "this or any other mandatory program runs the very great risk of reducing, not increasing, the available supplies of fuels."

Love said a voluntary allocation plan announced earlier by the administration would remain in effect for the time being. Love said he has urged price controls "which fully recognize the need for increased supply."

He said that an announcement will be made Friday on final Phase 4 rules which he said he believed "will facilitate increased imports of both crude oil and products, as well as increased domestic production."

He said the Phase 4 regulations will give special attention to meeting the problems of heating oil for his winter.

Love emphasized his intention "to do all in my power to insure that fair play prevails" for independent petroleum dealers.

Open meetings bill signed by governor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Open meetings legislation, the target of an unsuccessful petition drive a year ago, was signed today by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

The bill, which takes effect Sept. 28, would require that all records and meetings of governmental bodies in Missouri be open to the public, from legislative committees to city councils.

The sponsor of the bill, Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, was invited to the signing ceremony but did not attend.

Bond said, "Substantial questions have been raised" about sections requiring arrest records to be kept secret, but "I am signing it because the importance of having the open meetings provisions far outweigh the effect of any problems which may be caused by the amendment."

Bond termed the open meetings bill "a first significant step toward achieving the many reforms needed to assure ethics in government."

Bond also signed bills to:

—Authorize a licensed embalmer to remove eyes from corpses if the eyes have been donated as a gift.

—Permit coroners to make tests for the content of alcohol or drugs in the bodies of motorists or pedestrians who die in traffic accidents.

—Grant immunity to physicians, surgeons, dentists, podiatrists, optometrists and hospital governing boards while they are acting as a hospital or medical review board.

—Permit the St. Louis Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority to issue a certificate for a tax reduction to a person who improves real property in a blighted area.

—Extend Medicaid coverage to about 3,600 children receiving foster care and parental school care.

—Allow the state Division of Health in cooperation with the Public Service Commission to set up rules on new mobile homes and require that all mobile homes must be tied down.

Increase in taxes for county residents noted for this year

Pettis County residents, in general will be paying more local taxes this year than in 1972, according to school, city and special tax rates approved recently by the county court.

The average county school tax levy this year, per $100 assessed valuation, is $3.04. This compares to last year's total of $2.88 per $100 assessed valuation. Six of the 11 school districts in Pettis County will be operating on increased levies this year.

Road district tax rates remain the same as in 1972.

The city tax rates for Green Ridge, Houstonia, Hughesville, LaMonte and Smithton are the same as last year. The Sedalia City Council recently voted to reduce the city's tax levy from $1.70 to $1.65. The Windsor tax rate increased this year from $2.35 to $2.55.

A county-wide one-cent Johnsongrass levy will be paid by county residents this year although it wasn't on the books last year.

Residents in the southern part of the county who are included in the nursing home levy for Good Samaritan Nursing Home in Cole Camp will pay 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation this year, compared to a 25-cent levy last year. The 40-cent levy for the Lincoln Nursing Home remains the same.

The 1973 school tax rates are as follows: Sweet Springs R-1, $3.10, an increase of 10 cents the 1972 levy; LaMonte R-4, $2.80, an increase of 50 cents; Hughesville R-5, $3.45, an increase of 45 cents; Smithton R-6, $3.85, no increase; Green Ridge R-8, $3.15, no increase; Dresden R-12, $1.80, an increase of 20 cents; Sedalia 200, $3.62, no increase; Cole Camp, $2.65, an increase of 25 cents; Windsor, $3.25, no increase; Knob Noster, $2.65, no increase; Pilot Grove, $3.15, an increase of 30 cents.

The 1973 city levies are as follows: Green Ridge, $2.55; Houstonia, $2.10; Hughesville, 50 cents; LaMonte, $2.35; Sedalia, $1.65; Smithton, $2.35; Windsor, $2.55.

The road district tax rate is 35 cents each for Houstonia, Rowlette, the Twelve Mile Special Road District and the Green Ridge district. The Hughesville Road District levy is 55 cents.

The State Fair Community College tax levy remains at 40 cents.

Other tax levies, all the same as last year, are as follows: state, 3 cents; county, 50 cents; road and bridge, 35 cents; jail, 3 cents; county library, 10 cents.

The Pettis County clerk's office is presently compiling the taxes of all county residents, based on the applicable tax rates and assessed valuation.

Pettis County Clerk Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson said the task should be completed in "about five or six weeks."

Search narrows for boy radioing pleas for help

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — More than 200 searchers aided by airplanes and helicopters combed rugged mountains today for a lost boy whose radioed pleas for help have been heard since Tuesday.

One of the search coordinators, Chris Speakman, said a California radio operator reported receiving a transmission from the boy early today. She quoted the boy as saying he and his father were in a red and white pickup truck that had overturned, jamming both doors shut, Speakman said.

Earlier reports from amateur radio operators quoted the boy as saying his father had collapsed at the wheel while taking his son on a rabbit hunting trip. But Speakman said the boy now indicates that he is uncertain whether his father is dead.

According to the California radio operator, the boy reported that his father suffered head injuries in the crash, Speakman said. He added that the boy indicated in the last monitored transmission that he was in a heavily wooded area.

The search narrowed Wednesday when the voice told an Albuquerque ham radio operator that he could see the search lights of an airplane as it combed the Manzano area southeast of the city.

Capt. Rick Tweed, pilot of an Army plane searching the mountains late Wednesday, pleaded with boy to "keep talking to me. Please talk to me."

"You're doing a fantastic job, Larry," Tweed radioed. "Just continue talking. Say a prayer and tell us stories. We'll stay up here until we find you."

A police spokesman said air and ground efforts would continue in other parts of the state because "we've had so many conflicting reports that they're not going to give up anywhere just because of a new one."

Officers said they had received reports that the distress signals had been heard from California to Florida.

Members of ACRA-19, an Albuquerque radio-rescue group, said their efforts to locate the signal with direction-finding equipment were hindered because of the weak signal and because amateur radio operators were clogging channel 14, which the boy was using, despite requests that they keep the channel clear.

A police spokesman said the possibility that the transmissions were a hoax had not been discounted entirely. But he added: "We don't think it's a hoax because it's gone on so long..."

The broadcast pleas stopped shortly before 2 a.m. EDT and had not resumed by midnight, police said. Officers said they believed the boy had fallen asleep.

Operating the citizens band radio, believed located in an overturned pickup truck, probably involves nothing more than pressing a button on the microphone, officers said.

Rescuers say the continuous transmissions by the boy have weakened his radio batteries and the signal is fading.

Late Wednesday night the operator of a powerful citizens band radio in Albuquerque coordinated efforts with a search plane. The boy was told to yell into his microphone when he saw the lights of the plane.

"You've got to yell into that mike and yell loud when you see those lights," Mrs. Linda King told the boy.

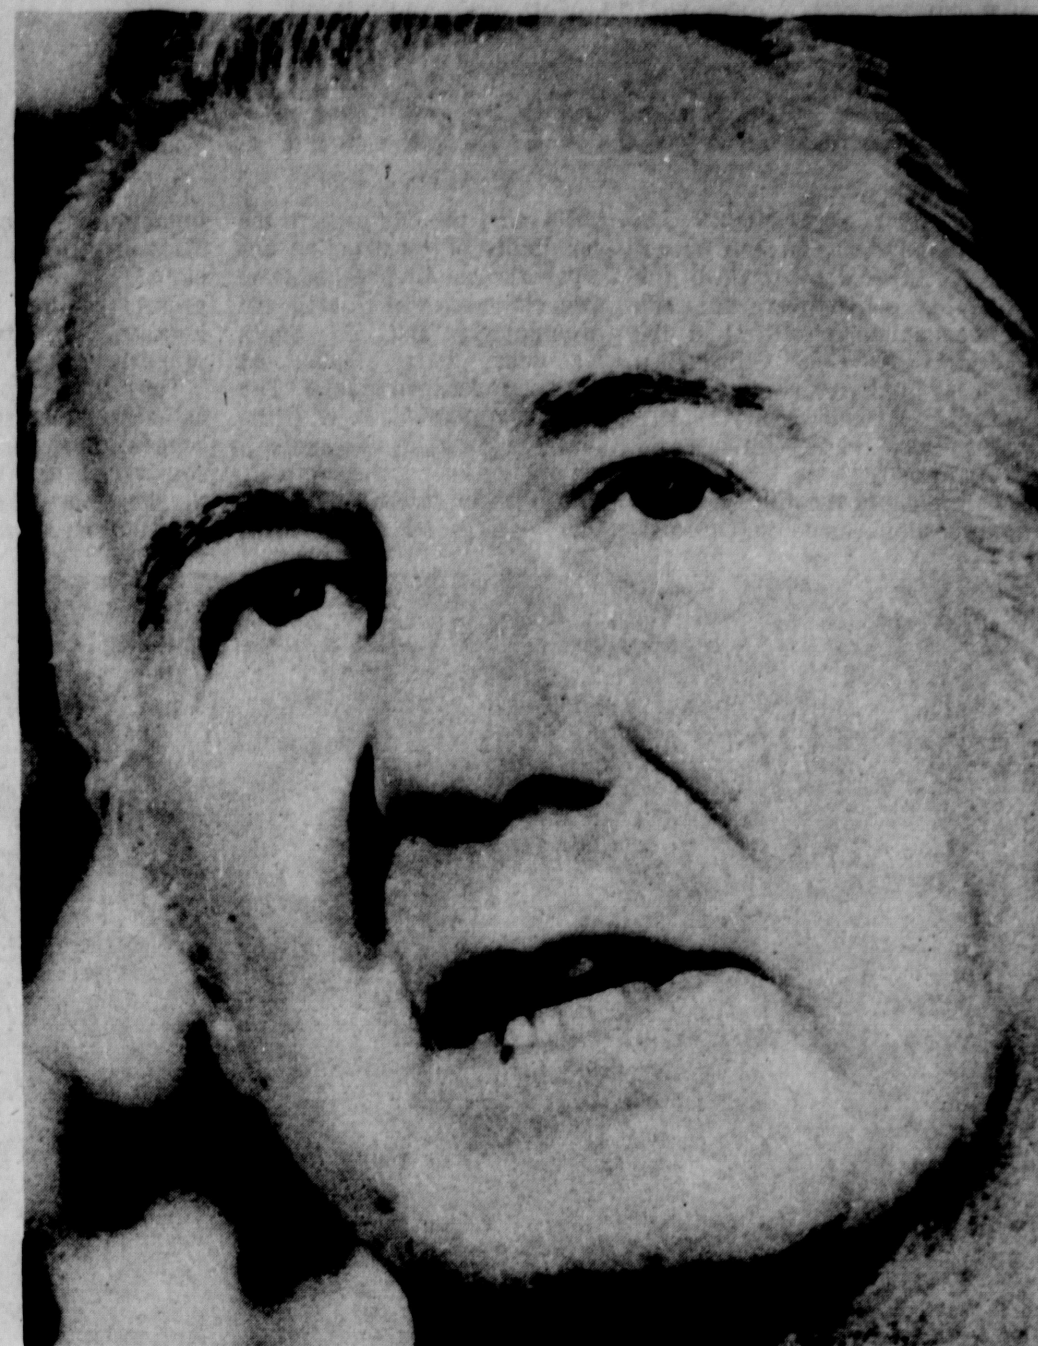

Seconds after the plane lights were switched on, ACRA units reported hearing a transmission from the boy's radio equipment.

They said the plane was over a picnic grounds in the Manzano Mountain area at the time.

The boy's distress calls were first reported Tuesday night by Darlene Ross of Fontana, Calif. She said she heard a boy crying and screaming for help. He said he was in New Mexico and his father was dead. He later said his name was Larry and he was seven years old.

An airborne search was begun Wednesday, with an Army U-21 search plane, Civil Air Patrol planes and two National Guard helicopters, state police said.

The boy told listeners that he and his father had been rabbit hunting and his father had collapsed while driving their pickup truck.

Denounces charges

Vice-president Spiro T. Agnew labelled allegations that he is involved in a kickback scheme in his home state of Maryland "a damned lie" Wednesday and said he does not plan to resign or expect to be indicted. He discussed the allegations at a news conference.

(UPI)

Agnew says charges are 'damned lies'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proclaiming that he will not be impaled on a sword of "damned lies," Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has taken up his own defense against allegations that he accepted political kickbacks. And Agnew insists he will not resign.

Meanwhile, a federal grand jury which since January has been investigating political corruption in Maryland went back into session in Baltimore this morning, although federal prosecutors would not say whether Agnew was the subject of the session. One of the prosecutors told a U.S. marshal outside the grand jury room that no indictments were expected today.

Breaking a self-imposed silence that lasted less than 48 hours, Agnew called newsmen together Wednesday to denounce assertions that he accepted kickbacks of $1,000 a week while governor of Maryland and a payment of $50,000 from one contractor after becoming vice president.

"I have no intention to be skewered in this fashion and since I have no intention to be so skewered, I have called this press conference to label as false and scurrilous and malicious these rumors, these assertions and accusations that are being circulated," Agnew said.

The reports that Agnew accepted kickbacks were published after he disclosed Monday that he was a subject of an investigation by U.S. Atty. George Beall in Baltimore.

The investigation involves allegations of bribery, extortion and tax evasion arising from kickbacks allegedly paid by building contractors, engineers and architects to Maryland and Baltimore County political figures. Republican fund-raising efforts also are involved.

Asked if he was unequivocally denying the kickback charges, Agnew replied:

"I am denying them outright, and I am labeling them—and I think a person in my position at a time like this might be permitted this departure from normal language—as damned lies."

In fielding a wide range of questions about the probe, Agnew also said:

—He will not resign, nor will he even step aside on a temporary basis while the investigation is going on.

—He has "no expectation of being indicted."

—He met with President Nixon for more than an hour on Tuesday, discussing the investigation. Agnew said he is satisfied with Nixon's expressions of support, although he feels he could stand on his own feet and isn't seeking support from anyone.

—He finds his position a distressing one for a public official to be in, but is more concerned about proving his innocence than he is about whatever damage the charges may have done to his political future.

—If and when the Baltimore investigation goes to a grand jury, he will decide then whether to appear before it.

Agnew said he had decided to break his silence on the charges because of defamatory statements being leaked to the news media by what he said the press characterized as sources "close to the federal investigation."

One particular target of Agnew's displeasure appeared to be that Jerome B. Wolff, a Baltimore County consultant, had told prosecutors of alleged $1,000-a-week kickbacks beginning in 1962 and of the alleged $50,000 kickback for past and possibly future services.

Within hours after Agnew would up the 31-minute news conference, Beall disavowed any involvement on his part or the part of his assistants in the news stories Agnew assailed.

Fire chief 'disappointed' council didn't buy land

Fire Chief Willis Jabas said Wednesday he was "disappointed" that the City Council did not vote to purchase land for a new consolidated fire station at its meeting Monday night.

Jabas called a proposal from the Insurance Services Office in St. Louis to close stations No. 1 and 2 and build a new consolidated station "a good recommendation." The council voted 5 to 2 against a proposal to purchase land on Hancock for the station.

"Stations 1 and 2 are really too close together," said Jabas, pointing out that they are only separated by 11 blocks and are both in the same voting precinct. "Many cities are abandoning their old downtown stations and building consolidated ones," he added.

The fire chief said station No. 2 at 211

South Kentucky "is in as bad shape as the old City Hall." He said station No. 1 at Fourth and Montgomery is in a "bad location" and has only one fire truck.

Jabas said some people had the wrong impression that the city's fire-fighting force would be reduced by having only two stations. He said this would not be the case, and that three companies of firemen would still be on duty.

One of the companies would be located at station No. 3 at 2606 West 16th, while two would be housed at the three-bay consolidated station.

Jabas said he would favor the Hancock location or any other that was suitable in the same area.

"The only thing I am interested in is giving the city of Sedalia the best fire protection available," the fire chief said.

Consolidated fire station would be adequate

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

A consolidated central fire station would serve the city adequately, an official of the Insurance Services Office (ISO) in St. Louis, which determines each Missouri city's fire insurance classification, said Wednesday.

Explaining the office's earlier suggestion (made in October, 1970), that the city explore the possibility of constructing one single fire station to replace the two older ones at Fourth and Montgomery and 211 South Kentucky, Larry Ralls, an office spokesman said, "The suggestion was made with the idea you could do this and still get by."

In a letter to the city dated Oct. 22, 1970, Ralls organization, then known as the Missouri Inspection Bureau, stated, "...we believe your present entire city can be handled by two stations properly located."

The 1970 recommendation came at the same time a suggestion was made to construct a new fire station in the west part of the city. This new station, located 2606 West 16th, was completed in August, 1971.

Ralls said the construction of two new smaller stations, instead of a larger consolidated one, would further reduce "response distance," the distance it takes fire engines to arrive at a fire from the station. He said this would be the "ideal situation."

The city is expected to officially receive notice from the ISO this fall that it has been awarded a Class 6 insurance classification, a step below its current Class 7 rating. By being thus classified, fire insurance rates for city merchants and homeowners will be correspondingly lowered.

Although the official announcement of the classification change will not be made until September or October, Ralls indicated that the resultant fire insurance reductions will be retroactive to last May 19. This was the date that Mayor Jerry Jones officially notified the insurance office that the city had put into operation a new 1,000-gallons-per minute pumper truck and retained its 1954 truck for reserve equipment.

The completion of these two requirements completed the city's compliance schedule necessary to receive the rate reclassification.

Asked whether the construction of two replacement stations, rather than one larger consolidated one, would improve the city's chances of obtaining a still lower rate, Ralls said he could not be sure until specific plans were available.

"Many, many things have to be taken into consideration," he said. "Such things as equipment, location, training and other items all enter into it. I couldn't say for sure how the construction of two new stations or one consolidated station would affect the city's chance of getting another reclassification until I have more information."

The decision whether to build a consolidated station or two separate ones "is primarily a matter of economics," Ralls said. "A city can have as good protection as it can afford or wants to pay. They could have a station on every block if they wanted."

Whether the decision is made to build two new stations or one larger consolidated one, Ralls indicated a primary item of importance would be location.

"You've got to take a lot of things into consideration when making this decision," he explained. "You have to consider future growth as well as present needs. You should try to anticipate annexation if possible."

Ralls indicated his office would be available to consult with city officials regarding upcoming fire protection plans. "We certainly can't tell them what to do, but we can advise and recommend. For example, we would be available to advise on the selection of a proper site for a station."

The City Council Monday night rejected an offer from the MKT railroad to purchase land for a station at the 500 block on Hancock. The location had been approved by the Insurance Services Office, Mayor Jones told the council. Several Democratic councilmen said they felt the city should have three fire stations.

Cyclists pass through

Twenty California bikers stopped in Sedalia Wednesday morning en route to Washington, D.C. in an effort to raise money for the American Red Cross. The riders left Sacramento on July 2 and expect to complete their 3,000 mile journey Aug. 27. A number of Sacramento businessmen have sponsored the travelers, pledging so much money per mile. The cyclists said that they hoped to raise $15,000 to $18,000. The group, which averages 60 to 75 miles per day, is supported by a three-vehicle caravan containing five support people and parts for the bikes. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Suit is filed to force EPA to release funds

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri attorney general's office has filed suit to force the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to release funds approved by Congress in 1972 for water pollution control construction.

The state intervened Wednesday in a suit filed by Texas authorities in the western district federal court of Texas.

The suit says Missouri's allotment for the 1972-73 fiscal year was $82 million but was reduced by the Environmental Protection Agency to $33.1 million, and that the allotment of $99 million for the current fiscal year was cut to $49 million.

Missouri has received $17.5 million in federal funds for projects approved in the 1972-73 fiscal year and has received no money for the current fiscal year.

Over 100 applications were approved by the state Clean Water Commission for the fiscal year ending June 30, and 56 projects have been approved for the current fiscal year.

The suit seeks to have the federal allotment restored to the full $181 million for the two fiscal years.

The suit said the EPA violated the U.S. Constitution, which provides that Congress shall have power to establish policy, pass laws and appropriate funds, and that the president and his executives shall "take care that the laws are faithfully executed."

The suit cited the following examples of projects, their total cost, the amount authorized by Congress, and the amount approved by the Environmental Protection Agency:

Metro Sewer District, Lemay, St. Louis — total cost $58.7 million, legal federal share, $44 million, and federal share under the reduced allotment — $2,250,000.

Metro Sewer District, Bissell Point, St. Louis — $63.1 million, $47.3 million, and under the reduced allotment, zero.

Metro Sewer District, Bonfils, St. Louis — $29.6 million, $22.2 million, $3,525,000 under the reduced allotment.

Little Blue Valley Sewer District, Kansas City — $18.8 million, $14.1 million for the federal share, and $7,063,375 under the reduced allotment.

City of Independence — $9.1 million, $6.8 million, $1,903,540.

Kansas City west side — $5.1 million, $3.8 million, and $135,375 under the reduced allotment.

Kansas City Blue River — $35.2 million, $26.4 million, $945,000.

Springfield Southwest Sewer District plant — $17 million, $12.7 million, $1,005,000.

Blood count and the stomach

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you tell me why, after most of the stomach is removed, the blood will not stay built up and one gets very little food value out of what is eaten.

The first few years after most of my stomach was removed, because of a duodenal ulcer, a vitamin tablet was taken every day, and a B-12 shot once, and sometimes twice, a month. But, within a year blood transfusions were necessary. Now I take another vitamin which includes iron and liver plus B-12 and an iron shot once a week. So far the blood count is staying up. I eat three regular meals a day plus small meals in between and at bedtime, but am unable to gain much weight. Have you heard of this before? I sure have not.

Dear Reader — This sometimes happens after such surgery. There are two problems involved. The lining of the stomach produces a substance called "intrinsic factor" which is necessary for the absorption of B-12. As long as your stomach is working properly and there is some acid and intrinsic factor formed, you will absorb the sources of B-12 in your diet, and in turn, this will help the blood-forming organs to produce the proper amount of red blood cells.

If the stomach fails to produce intrinsic factor, then your ability to absorb B-12 and vital substances important to blood formation disappears. This may result in pernicious anemia. Giving liver shots as you described provides these substances directly to the body, thereby avoiding the problem of not being absorbed from the digestive tract. Following the surgery you are either not producing enough intrinsic factor, or you have poor intestinal absorption, which causes you to be susceptible to anemia. This is a form of pernicious anemia occurring as a complication of your surgery, and this fits with the type of treatment that you are getting.

The other problems you are describing are related to "dumping syndrome." Your small stomach is not able to store food. One of the functions of the stomach is to be a large food reservoir to store the large volume of food we eat. A small amount is then passed progressively into the small intestine. In the total absence of the stomach, or if your stomach is very small, the food you eat is rapidly "dumped" into the small intestine. This overloads the small intestine's capacity, and causes it to move the food along too rapidly.

All important digestion and absorption of food material occurs in the small intestine. When it moves through too rapidly this interferes with absorption of the food material, and you don't get the full benefit from the calories, vitamins, and nutrients in your diet. One treatment for this problem is to have multiple small meals. In the course of time, the stomach often enlarges, and the condition is partially relieved.

The small meals that you eat should avoid large amounts of starches and sweets. With your type of problem — which is entirely different from people with normal digestive functions — you need to concentrate on a diet that has a higher portion of its food from protein and fat and less from carbohydrate. This does not mean, however, that you should eliminate carbohydrates entirely.

Maximum change for wheat futures increased

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Directors of the Kansas City Board of Trade have ruled that beginning Friday the maximum change for one day's trading in wheat demands will be increased to 25 cents, up 15 cents from the present ceiling.

The board's action came on the heels of sharp increases in wheat demand and the jump in bidding to $3.90 per bushel on September wheat option—the eighth consecutive day bidding increased the full 10-cent limit set by the board and the 12th in the last 15 days.

Despite the sharp increase in the bid Wednesday, the day was marked by absolutely no active trading in the wheat futures market.

In other actions, the board raised initial margins for hedges to 30 cents a bushel from 20 cents and on all other trades, including speculative, to 40 cents a bushel from 30 cents.

Walter Verne III, executive vice president of the Board of Trade, said the boost in allowable limits "hopefully will allow the futures prices to catch up with the cash price."

At the opening bell at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday wheat opened at $4 a bushel for September futures contracts, up from the $3.90 a bushel the same contracts had sold for Tuesday.

The opening bid of $4 was met with absolute silence.

Those with wheat futures were not selling.

Brokers here said if a seller's market continues, wheat futures for September could approach $5 a bushel this time next week.

ATA sales tax extended by Bond

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond signed into law Wednesday a measure extending for a second year a half-cent sales tax for the Kansas City Area Transportation Authority.

Mayor Charles B. Wheeler Jr., of Kansas City, attended the bill signing at the bus garage. He said the measure provided the authority with $7.5 million last year and will contribute an estimated $8.3 million in the coming year's operations.

No swimming tonight

Swimming in waters at a beach at Westhampton, Long Island, N.Y., is for only the very brave. The appearance of a six-foot shark canceled swimming as the animal moved to within 75 yards from the water line. Observers said the shark might have been attracted to the area by youngsters fishing with pieces of squid as bait. (UPI)

DEATH NOTICES

Gus Edward Witte

Funeral services for Gus Edward Witte, 75, 608 West 10th, who died at the Bothwell Hospital Wednesday morning, will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 3 p.m. Friday. The Rev. Erhard W. Wolf, pastor of the St. Paul's Lutheran Church, will officiate.

Chester Eding, soloist, will be accompanied by Mrs. Clyde Waters at the organ.

Pallbearers will be Jack Butler, Leonard Butler, Bob Gooch, James Williams, Richard Yeager and Joe Yeager.

Burial will be in the Memorial Park Cemetery.

The body is at the funeral home, where the family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday.

Approval is given funds for projects

Three federal Neighborhood Youth Corps (NYC) projects, including one involving Sedalia, have received additional funding to continue operations through September, the U.S. Department of Labor announced.

Neal B. Hasdell, assistant regional director for manpower, said an allocation of $8,600 went to the Missouri Valley Human Resources Development Corporation in Corder, which now has 17 out-of-school NYC enrollees. The majority of the 17 participants are based in Sedalia and Marshall, a spokesman in Corder said.

The new grants for the three NYC projects and another project in St. Joseph total $95,890.

The West Central Missouri Rural Development Corporation in Appleton City received $10,890 to provide summer jobs for 538 young persons in a nine-county area who will return to school in the fall.

A total of $57,600 extends through September the NYC out-of-school project administered by the Human Development Corporation in St. Louis. The program provides work-training experience for 91 school-age youths.

A New Careers Project in St. Joseph received $18,800 to operate through the end of August. It provides on-the-job training to 14 participants.

Lodge's takeover discussed by group

The Bothwell Community Betterment club met Tuesday night at the Edward Rehmer home, Route 4, where officers for the coming year were elected.

Discussion centered over the signature by Gov. Christopher Bond of a bill allowing the state to take over the lodge located on the John H. Bothwell estate north of Sedalia. This action was regarded as a main goal for the group, which expressed support Tuesday for continuing efforts to have the lodge opened to the public.

Officers elected were: Mrs. Junior Greer, chairman; Mrs. Dewey Swopes, vice-chairman; Mrs. Ralph Connor, secretary; Mrs. Pauline Rehmer, treasurer; Ralph Connor, publicist; and Mrs. Charles Wise, devotional chairman.

Class schedules available at S-C

Students in the ninth, 10th and 11th grades who will be attending Smith-Cotton High School this fall may obtain their class schedules beginning Thursday at the high school office, according to Earl Finley, principal.

The office is open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, Finley said.

Runaways are found hiding in Sedalia

Two juvenile girls, reported to be runaways from Independence, were found sleeping in a restroom at Centennial Park Thursday morning by a park employee.

The two girls reportedly were sleeping in an outside restroom that is normally locked during the night. According to police, the girls said they had arrived at the park about 10 p.m. Wednesday night and found the door to the restroom unlocked. A window to the room was broken but police have not connected the girls with breaking into the room.

It was also reported that a cash register in the building had apparently been pried but entry was not gained. Police said that the girls had access to the room where the register is located but have not connected them with trying to force open the register.

Two juvenile Sedalia boys were picked up with the girls and taken to the police station for questioning. The two boys were found in the same area as the girls, but there was no apparent connection and the youths were later released to their parents.

The police department did not have a missing persons report on the girls but a check with the Independence police department confirmed that they were listed as missing.

The girl's parents have been notified and plan to drive to Sedalia to pick them up.

It was also learned Thursday morning that Pettis County Prosecutor Gary Fleming will not file burglary charges against three Sedalians arrested following a break-in at Smith's Country Music Barn, South 65 Highway.

Police Chief William Miller said that the owner of Smith's had decided not to prosecute the three, identified as Jackie Moore, 18, Dennis Worthley, 17, and Ronnie Christopher, 17, all of 413 North Hurley. They allegedly broke into a cigarette machine and stole 115 packs of cigarettes.

It was later learned a warrant was issued by the Pettis County sheriff's department Thursday morning charging Worthley with parole violation. Worthley was given a 90-day sentence with six months probation last June for allegedly stealing less than $50. The conditions of the probation stipulated that Worthley maintain good behavior, refrain from violating any law and that he pay all court costs.

Fleming filed a petition for revocation of the probation because of Worthley's alleged involvement in the break-in at Smith's and because he has failed to pay previous court costs as directed in the probation conditions. Should the court decide to revoke the probation, Worthley would be subject to serving the original 90-day sentence.

The three will stand trial in municipal court Friday on charges of petit larceny and destruction of property, according to Miller. The complaint for these charges was signed by the cigarette vendor who owns the damaged machine. The three youths remained in jail as of late Thursday morning.

Complete probe of force landing near airport here

Federal Aviation Administration officials concluded Wednesday their investigation of the forced landing of a small aircraft north of the Sedalia Municipal Airport Tuesday afternoon.

Airport manager James Abbas said officials went to the site nearly two miles from the airport runway Wednesday morning to finish their investigation and to take statements from the pilot, Allen Nusbaum, Elkhorn, Wis.

Abbas said it appeared the investigation would turn up little evidence to the cause of the incident. Nusbaum reportedly told authorities Tuesday he was forced to make the emergency landing after running out of fuel.

Nusbaum was flying to Sedalia to confer with Paul Jensen and Co. officials, 519 East Third, when the accident occurred.

Abbas said the craft was towed to the airport Wednesday afternoon.

Oscar Daniels Joslin

Funeral services for Oscar Daniel Joslin, 84, 1808 South Missouri, who died at Bothwell Hospital Monday morning, will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 1 p.m. Friday. The Rev. Robert W. Horton will officiate.

Mrs. Larry Flaughter, soloist, will be accompanied by Mrs. Clyde Waters at the organ.

Pallbearers will be Earl Payne, Adolph Glenn, Leslie Sutherland, Harold Greer, John Dancy and U. L. Howerton.

Burial will be in the Crown Hill Cemetery.

Plaintiffs plan appeal on bomb ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal appeals court has overturned a court order to stop U.S. bombing in Cambodia but the plaintiffs say they will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The reversal Wednesday permits the United States to continue bombing Cambodia until the Aug. 15 cutoff date, unless the Supreme Court issues a contrary decision.

Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., one of those who filed the suit against the government, said she would ask the Supreme Court to rule on the constitutionality of the bombing even if the case goes beyond Aug. 15.

Several hours after oral arguments were presented, the U.S. Court of Appeals panel voted 2 to 1 to overturn U.S. District Court Judge Orrin Judd's July 25 order to stop the bombing.

Judd had ruled that Congress never voted its approval and that therefore the government lacked the necessary authority "to order military forces into combat in Cambodia or to release bombs over Cambodia."

Shortly before Judd's order to halt the bombing was to take effect July 27, the government obtained a stay from the U.S. Court of Appeals.

The New York Civil Liberties Union argued the case for the plaintiffs. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas ruled last Saturday in favor of lifting the stay in the week.

Impact of state legislation is topic for council

The local impact of newly-passed state legislation imposing stricter standards on ambulance operations in Missouri will be studied by city councilmen at a special business meeting at 7 o'clock tonight at the Municipal Building conference room.

Mayor Jerry Jones indicated the council will specifically study the language of the legislation to determine how it may affect the language of a city bill that is currently being drafted by City Counselor Robert Fritz.

The council earlier in the year authorized the ordinance, which would outline standards of safety and establish personnel requirements for local ambulance firms. The bill recently passed by the Missouri legislature and signed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond established similar state-wide standards for all ambulance firms in Missouri.

It was also reported that the council may further discuss the economic impact of the legislation on the city's continuing effort to improve the local ambulance situation. It has been suggested in the past that a city-owned or subsidized system, to be funded with revenue sharing monies, be operated, possibly under the auspices of Bothwell Hospital.

For members of OATS

To work for bus schedules

The Pettis County Older Adults Transportation Service (OATS) reached another stage of completion Wednesday night when members of the OATS planning committee met with their new area supervisor, Chuck Haley, 422 South Quincy.

Committee members agreed to survey OATS members to decide on a permanent schedule for buses through Sedalia. They also agreed to look for volunteers to take transportation requests from OATS members.

Carl Franklin, chairman of the Pettis County planning committee, announced that room 204 of the Municipal Building is available to OATS and will be open for business as soon as a telephone is installed.

Haley, who has been on the job for two weeks, explained that he is responsible for 16 counties in mid-Missouri. He will operate from the Sedalia office three days of the week and spend two days working in the Warrensburg office.

OATS has five, 14-passenger buses located in Blackburn, Warrensburg, Warsaw, Hermitage and Lebanon. There is another bus available in Butler but it doesn't have a driver yet, Haley said.

Several buses already are scheduled through Sedalia. The Warsaw bus stops here the second and fourth Monday of each month. The Warrensburg bus stops here the first Wednesday and third Friday of each month. Since Aug. 3, the Warrensburg bus also has been routed from LaMonte to Sedalia every other Friday.

As soon as the planning committee decides on a permanent schedule, based on a survey of area OATS members, the buses will be coming more frequently to Sedalia, Haley said.

"Sedalia is really lucky because it is a major stopping point for many people. If a bus should stop here for four or five hours, there is no reason why we can't utilize that bus for transportation within the city," he added.

Haley explained that OATS is available to anyone 55 years

Two more accidental bombings

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Two more U.S. accidental bombings have been reported by the Cambodian military command in the last 12 days, army sources reported today.

They were at Prey Bang, a village 15 miles northeast of Phnom Penh on July 29, and at Setbo, 13 miles southeast of the capital on July 30, the sources said.

At Prey Bang, three Cambodian soldiers were killed, 10 were wounded and four persons were listed as missing. At Setbo, eight soldiers and eight army dependents were wounded and four persons were listed as missing.

The military authority claimed that American jets were responsible for the bombings, but the planes were not identified.

On Monday, more than 400 persons were killed or wounded at Neak Luong in the worst bombing accident of the Indochina war.

A U.S. air attaché, Col. David H.E. Opfer, claimed that an investigation indicated American planes were not responsible for killing 15 civilians at Veal Sbau, three miles from Phnom Penh on Sunday.

He said U.S. officials at Nakorn Phanom, Thailand, had reported there were no U.S. strikes within a half mile of Veal Sbau that day. He said four Cambodian propeller-driven T28s dropped four bombs and two rockets, but villagers said the bombs fell from jet fighter bombers.

The Cambodian air force has no jets. Cambodian troops advanced along Highway 1 today behind massive U.S. bombing in efforts to clear the west bank of the Mekong River and reopen the road to the government's base at Neak Luong.

Col. Am Rong, chief spokesman for the military command, reported one government force backed by armored personnel carriers pushed eight miles southeast down the highway from the village of Deyeth.

Another government column fought its way six miles up the road from Neak Luong, he reported. This left about eight miles of rebel-held road still to be cleared before the two forces link up.

It was while U. S. planes were softening up the insurgents along the Mekong as the operation got under way that American fliers accidentally bombed Neak Luong and an island to the north of it Monday and Tuesday. At least 145 persons were reported killed and 280 were injured.

With the U. S. bombing support continuing for only a week longer, the Phnom Penh government is trying to clear the insurgents from the banks of the river to make things easier for supply convoys from South Vietnam.

Am Rong said government forces met only weak resistance as they moved down the highway into the village of Chruoy Dang, 21 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. One government soldier was reported killed.

From the other direction, government troops reached the village of Koki Thom.

The Pentagon said U.S. bombing in Cambodia is at its highest level in a month because of increased pressure by the insurgents.

$1,107 is obtained during fund drive

Last week's fund-raising drive by the Sedalia-Pettis County Diabetes Association netted $1,107.45, it was reported Thursday by Mrs. Sharon Fischer, secretary of the group.

A garage sale Friday and a collection effort in the downtown and shopping center areas Saturday raised the money, which will be used for the diabetic children's camp near Herrman and for a detection clinic scheduled for Sedalia in November.

Mrs. Gene Mosier was the fund-raising chairman this year.

Spider didn't need gravity to spin web

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Arabella, the space-going spider, has learned quickly to spin an apparently normal web without the aid of gravity, the Skylab 2 astronauts reported today.

Her success was to be rewarded later today with something a lot of Americans can't get on earth — a piece of filet mignon.

Dr. Owen K. Garriott gave an account of Arabella's work as he, Capt. Alan L. Bean and Jack R. Lousma prepared for a photo survey of earth resources in western Canada and the eastern United States.

The space station was to pass over British Columbia, North Dakota, Minnesota and Ohio and across the eastern coast at Cape Hatteras as a package of sophisticated cameras and sensors examine the earth and its atmosphere.

Garriott said that for the first day or two Arabella was disoriented by weightlessness and could build only a rudimentary web in the corners of her cage. By the third day, however, she had managed to spin a web with a normal circular pattern.

"Simply working on her own, she has figured out a very nice solution to the problems of zero gravity," Garriott said.

Garriott congratulated 17-year-old Judith Miles, a high school student from Lexington, Mass., who suggested the experiment.

Skylab medical officials reported Wednesday that the three crewmen are in excellent spirits and are now just as healthy as were the previous Skylab astronauts at this point in the mission.

Sodomy suspect fails to appear

Joe E. Griffis, 18, 900 East 14th, failed to appear for his preliminary hearing in Pettis County Magistrate Court Thursday morning on a charge of committing sodomy.

Griffis, who is free on $2,500 bond, allegedly molested a 12-year-old Sedalia youth at knifepoint on July 20. The hearing has been continued until Monday to see if Griffis will appear, and, if he does not, Judge Frank Armstrong indicated that bond would be forfeited and efforts will be made to return Griffis to custody.

Tape equipment is taken from cars

Two incidents involving the theft of tape equipment from autos were reported to police.

In the first, David White, 103 East 28th, told police that 10 tapes, valued at $75, and a tape case, worth $5, were apparently stolen from his auto sometime Tuesday. White reported that he parked his car on the west side of the Central Missouri Foods, Inc., building, where he is employed, at about 8 a.m. Tuesday morning and when he returned after work, around 4:30 p.m., the items were missing.

In the second incident 15 tapes, valued at $75, were reportedly taken from a truck owned by Robert Butts, 121 East Third, about 3:30 p.m. Wednesday. Butts told police that he left the truck for about 20 minutes and when he returned the tapes were gone.

In other police activity, 60 12-by-10 foot window panes were reported broken at the Standard Bulk Plant, 1100 West Main around 7 p.m. Saturday. Raymond Scrimager, an employee at the plant, told police that a neighbor youth told him that three other youths were throwing rocks at the building. The boys fled when they saw Scrimager approaching. No estimate of the damage was available.

Book sellers

David Webb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Webb, 314 North Summitt, was one of many Smith-Cotton High School students who took advantage of the PTSA Book Exchange Wednesday by offering his used textbooks for sale. Waiting to check in her used books which are being sold Thursday, Friday and Monday at the gymnasium is Linda Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor, 1823 South Collins. Mrs. Robert Lindstrom, PTSA president, is coordinating the project which she said will raise money to be used for a student financial aid fund.

Knowledge is at their feet

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Knowledge can be not only at students' fingertips in the figurative sense but also at their feet in a very literal sense thanks to one innovation in the modern classroom.

A variety of striking design elements, some realistic, some abstract, are combined in a new floor covering, KinderKarpit, so that it becomes a virtual textbook on the floor. Developed commercially by Sears, Roebuck and Allied Chemical in conjunction with leading educators, it meets the essential technical criteria of good classroom decor — noise reduction, esthetic values, safety and comfort — while also functioning as a directly available learning tool.

These designs, placed in various locations around the learning area, rather than in a cluster, tend to set up activity zones for specific subject study. Each zone can become a specific play area for the child as well. The zones can establish the concept of communities within a class group.

Each design lends itself to various types of activities and the total involvement of the child in the activities. The concept of outside-inside, for example, can become meaningful to the child who is physically inside or outside a circle. The concept of grouping and sets with objects is easy to relate when actual objects can be placed on the floor where the child can feel them and move them. The idea of "one more than," vital if children are to deal rationally with counting, becomes clear when a child moves more than one step on the checkerboard.

More advanced subjects such as addition, subtraction, multiplication and division can be experienced rather than viewed abstractly. Distances can become real when a child feels his own dimensions while lying down on the floor.

Area measurements and such complex words as perimeter, circumference can be traced by the teacher — and felt by the student. These measurements can be started with less formal methods such as spans, shoe or pencil lengths before moving to the more formal one of feet.

Fractions take on meaning when the circle is broken into parts with string.

Mathematics, however, is but one dimension of the possibilities opened by these designs. The zones can provide the boundaries for the points of the compass, east and west and north and south. Children's experiences in studying a community can be utilized in establishing, planning and layout of a model community — on the checkerboard, in the circle, in the maze. A solar system can be explored with circles. Basic architectural forms can be understood with the circle, rectangle and the square. The circle can be a musical note, a comma, a colon.

Included are materials found in the average classroom — pictures, figures, blocks, numerals, pieces of string. All the design elements lend themselves to cutting out things and creating materials which can be used in the educational process. Students can make the hands of a clock or they can act out the passage of time. Children may create their own houses for use in a model community; make their own chess figures for use on the checkerboard.

Not unlike a high fidelity audio system, the various elements of this floor covering are the components of a very useful educational system. The classroom may have one, two or many of the components which can be incorporated into the regular curriculum as well as into the play schedule.

Student reports

Debra King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don L. King, 1213 West Fourth, has received a speech and dramatic arts scholarship from the University of Missouri-Columbia.

The scholarship stipulates that Debra's tuition for the fall and winter semesters will be paid in full. She is a junior majoring in speech and dramatics.

Kenneth Eugene Coffelt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill E. Coffelt, 2537 Southwest Blvd., has been awarded a veteran's grant for his sophomore year at Columbia College in Columbia.

Coffelt, a 1969 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, served with the U.S. Marine Corps. He attended State Fair Community College.

Boy Scout trip experiences told

Six Boy Scouts from Troop 65 and their two leaders have had some once-in-a-lifetime experiences while on their 900-mile trip to Philmont Scout Ranch in Cimarron, N. Mex.

According to information received from troop correspondent Brad Dittmer, the scouts spent their first evening camp at Kit Carson National Forest where they visited Taos Pueblo Indian Reservation.

While on a hike from Baldy Town on Baldy Mountain the next day "we came face to face with a bull," Brad said. Another evening "we cooked dinner in the rain, but it was worth it," he said.

"One night we had a bear visit us," Brad noted and concluded his letter to the Democrat-Capitol by saying, "It has rained every day we've been here."

The Scouts arrived at Philmont on July 30 and are expected to return home Sunday.

Members of the troop are Brad Dittmer, Eric Smith, John Reed, Jeff Allen, Robert Messerli and Ed Taylor. Leaders are Richard Parkhurst and David Bear.

At Jamboree

Four Sedalia Boy Scouts attending Jamboree West July 30 through Thursday at Farragut State Park, Idaho, have spent time visiting with BSA national staffer Jim Leslie, editor of the Jamboree leader's newspaper. Leslie's scoutmaster, Harry Lambirth, is the grandfather of three of the boys and their father was in Leslie's graduating class at Smith-Cotton High School. The boys are left to right, Ben Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben T. Harris, and Harry, Bob and David Lambirth, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Lambirth, 1000 North Grand.

Two families have different results in their dealings for homes

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Ginny and Riley Gibson have lost a lot of sleep in recent weeks. They're trying to buy their first home.

Like an increasing number of young couples, the Gibsons are seeing their dreams drift away. The reason is money—or lack of it. Money is extremely tight these days. That has made mortgages almost impossible to obtain in some parts of the country or has sent interest rates skyrocketing.

Riley, 26, an Alabama Health Department employee, and Ginny, 25, an Alabama Journal reporter, have been living in a rented brick house since their marriage four years ago. They pay $125 a month.

"It's very small, and it's getting smaller every day," Ginny said. "We've been renting for four years, and we have nothing to show for it."

"It's a basic thing when you get married. You want a home. You want permanence."

The Gibsons, who have a 3-year-old son, looked at homes the past two years, but the search didn't begin in earnest until this summer, after they'd saved more than $4,000 for a down payment. They thought that would be enough to buy the kind of home they wanted. They soon found it wasn't.

"I have no sympathy for realtors," said Ginny, who did most of the house hunting. "I would tell them what we wanted, and they would inevitably show me something different... They showed me $35,000 and $40,000 homes that were crack-boxes, that just weren't soundly constructed. There was no way we could afford that. It got to the point where I would get to the front door and say 'no' before even going in."

One $35,000 house would have required an $18,000 down payment, Riley said, shaking his head. "It's really impossible for a young couple to buy a home if you don't have thousands and thousands of dollars," added his wife.

But finally they found "exactly what we wanted," she said.

The house is set on more than an acre of land in lush, green country, seven miles from downtown. It has four bedrooms, two baths, a combination kitchen-dining room and a spacious living room with exposed beams and a stone fireplace.

Best of all, the 15-year-old house cost $18,000. The Gibsons thought that, with their $16,000 combined income, they would have no trouble getting a $14,000 loan, after a $4,000 down payment.

But they were wrong. They weren't eligible for an FHA or VA loan because the house is in a flood-control zone—less than half a mile from a river. They could not qualify for another government program because their income was too high.

Banks and savings and loan associations were not loaning any money because they had none. "I called one savings and loan, and the man said they weren't even taking applications," Ginny said.

Then came a series of fruitless queries to mortgage companies.

"The interest rates were ridiculous. They ran eight per cent on the total amount of the loan—not on decreasing principle—for the entire period, plus discount points," said Ginny. Discount points are fees paid by both seller and buyer.

"We would be paying $250 a month for an $18,000 house," Riley added. "We may as well be interested in a $60,000 house. We just can't afford it."

He figures that, with the loan, the home eventually would cost $25,600.

"One year ago, we could have gotten this house with no problem," he said.

Finally, the Gibsons found a mortgage company that would give them a 15-year loan at eight per cent interest on a decreasing principal. The monthly payments would be $145. But the company requires a $5,400 down payment.

"We're having second thoughts about the house now," said Ginny. "We just don't know if we can swing it."

The Gibsons say the whole experience has been "educational."

"It's crazy," Ginny said. "A few months ago, I had never heard about Fannie Mae (Federal National Mortgage Co.) or discount points. Now I could open an office to give advice on how to buy a home."

"You'd think that all the money in the world had been buried in a hole in Siberia. It's a hassle, a damn hassle."

"It's the personal things that hurt. We've started thinking how we want to decorate it, to make it ours.... And now we may not get it. I just want to cry."

WESTPORT, Conn. (AP) — David and Barbara Matlow bought a home this summer, a three-bedroom split-level worth $77,000. It really was no big deal.

It was the Matlows' third purchase in five years; and each, because of his steadily rising salary and the spiraling value of housing, has been easier.

"Real estate is not an expense, it's an investment. There's no such thing as selling a house for less than what you paid for it," said Matlow, a 33-year-old marketing manager for a large pharmaceutical firm in New York.

The formula has worked well for Matlow. He paid $32,000 for his first home and sold it 18 months later at a profit of 12 per cent. Sale of the second house brought a 30 per cent profit.

Now, as was the case when the Matlows occupied their present home in mid-July, many home buyers are facing a tight market, especially those purchasing their first home. Mortgages are difficult to get in some areas. Interest rates are running as high as nine per cent, where available.

Matlow had no trouble getting a 7 1/4 per cent mortgage on his present home. He was able to make a 50 per cent down payment.

"We extended ourselves a bit with this house but figured it was worth it for several reasons," said Matlow. "Real estate is appreciating at a phenomenal rate. This house will not be worth less than what we paid for it when we decide to move. I don't think I'll be making less money than I make now. And we knew we would be happier than ever before in a house like this."

Matlow earns under $35,000 annually, and he and his wife have two children, aged 6 and 7.

Barbara Matlow, 32, still remembers their first house in New Haven. They found it after a month's search of more than 30 homes in the spring of 1968.

"We were looking for something in the $20,000 range. A two-story, three-bedroom house with a nice size family room, a large back yard, in an area with good schools and nice people," she said.

They found a well-kept, 17-year-old home costing $32,000, more than they wanted to pay on an income of $15,000. But they decided the house was worth it, put down 30 per cent and took out a 25-year mortgage at 6 1/2 per cent.

Eighteen months later, Matlow was promoted to sales manager for southern New England, and they sold the house within two weeks for $36,000.

The Matlows moved to Framingham, Mass., and settled in a neighborhood filled with rising young executives like David who knew they'd be moving on. They paid $36,000—40 per cent down on a 6 1/2 per cent mortgage—for the 6-year-old house. They were its fourth owners.

"We lived in the house with the intention of upgrading it for resale," said Mrs. Matlow. She redecorated the master bedroom, adding paisley-patterned windowshades and matching drapes, touched up various furniture.

"If the house shows well, it does something psychologically for the people who come to look at it," she said. "We figured we spent about $300 for redecorating, and that probably added about $2,000 to its asking price when time came to sell."

When Matlow was transferred to New York in May, they sold the house for $46,000 to a young couple looking for its first home. It took less than three weeks.

Westport is a residential community of about 28,000 about 75 minutes by train from New York. The average income is about $21,000, and the average selling price of a house last year was $71,222.

Some banks in the Westport area have set mortgage limits of $60,000 to $75,000 on any price house making it difficult for buyers of higher-priced homes. But realtors say demand for homes exceeds the supply.

Matlow said he has heard of young couples who can't get mortgages. And as a successful home owner at 33, his advice to young people is:

"Project ahead into the future. Think of the money you'll be earning, the kind of life you'll be living. One should not make decisions on the circumstances of today. Things change so fast. One thing is sure, a house will be worth a lot more in the future."

Empty beds less than reported

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The number of unused beds in dormitories at Central Missouri State University at Warrensburg total about half of the total given by the state Commission on Higher Education, says Warren C. Lovinger, university president.

Figures given to a Missouri House Appropriations subcommittee a week ago showed 1,786 vacancies at the Central Missouri State dormitories for the spring semester.

In a letter to the subcommittee, Lovinger explained that the total bed space had been reduced to 4,384 and there were 3,362 occupancies for last spring, leaving 1,022 vacancies. Several other universities have similar vacancy totals.

The subcommittee has been investigating ways to use the empty dormitory space.

Lovinger said the number of available beds had been reduced by conversion of East Hudson Hall to a conference center, by conversion of 400 rooms from doubles to singles, and by removing 40 beds from the fraternity complex.

Lovinger said that after debts were paid, the university had $83,500 left over in dormitory income for the 1972-73 school year.

Merger of farm promotion groups agreed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Representatives of 200 farm groups agreed to the merger of two farm promotion groups to inform the public of problems of agriculture following a two-day meeting here Wednesday.

Voting to merge were members of a steering committee of a farm group organized in Washington in June by Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Mo., and the board of directors of the National Agricultural Institute-National Agricultural Communications Board.

The result of the meeting called by Litton was formation of the steering committee that agreed with the NAI merger.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Of 575,000,000 tons of soft coal mined in the U.S. in 1972, 270,000,000 tons (47 per cent) was strip-mined. The World Almanac notes. Kentucky strip-mined the most soft coal, 56,800,000 tons; followed by Ohio, 37,600,000; Illinois, 29,000,000; Pennsylvania, 28,000,000; West Virginia, 21,700,000. In 1964, 152,000,000 tons (31 per cent) of U.S. soft coal was strip mined.

WASHINGTON — "There has been a lot of misinformation in the press as to why New Zealand has raised such strong objections to the French holding their atomic tests in the Pacific," Anthony Cubert-Jones, a New Zealander, told me. "We are not against France having an atomic bomb. As a matter of fact, we welcome it. The French deserve a bomb. They've earned it."

Buchwald

"Then what is your objection?" I asked.

"We feel that by holding their tests in the Pacific, the French are cheating their own citizens."

"I don't understand."

"The French taxpayer has paid a billion dollars to have his government develop an atomic bomb. But he has been unable to see what's he's getting for his money. All he can do is read in the newspapers that France has set off a bomb in the atoll of Mururoa. He has to take the French government's word that the explosion was a success. We New Zealanders feel this is very unfair to French citizens who have paid for it but get none of the joy of actually seeing an atomic bomb go off."

"But what's the solution?"

"I think the French should hold their atomic tests in France so everyone can see them."

"Are you suggesting the next atomic explosion take place over Paris?"

"Now you're being ridiculous. You know it's infeasible to hold atomic blasts in a large city. What I have in mind is that the experiments take place in either Burgundy or Bordeaux. The French could clear away 20 or 30 miles of vineyards, build a testing complex and send up the bomb in a balloon to explode over the countryside. The mushroom cloud would be visible for hundreds of miles and could be witnessed by millions of Frenchmen. Can you imagine how proud the French would be to see their own bomb, made in France by Frenchmen, floating over the Eiffel Tower?"

"Wouldn't there be some health hazards?" I asked.

"The French have assured us that there is no danger from their experiments on the Mururoa atoll so I'm sure the same would be true if they blasted away in France."

"I wonder why the French never thought of it?"

"I suppose they thought those of us who live in the Pacific should get the benefit of their bomb. Perhaps they believed it would help tourism in Tahiti. I can't speak for their thinking, but if I were a Frenchman, I'd be damned mad that I didn't get the fallout from a bomb I paid for with my hard-earned francs."

"Why do you think Pompidou insisted the explosion take place in Micronesia instead of Burgundy or Bordeaux?"

"This is only conjecture on my part, but I suspect he was afraid the thing wouldn't go off. It would have been very embarrassing if he told everyone in France he was going to explode his bomb in Burgundy, and the thing went pfffft. Can you imagine the disappointment of the vine growers in the area?"

"Is it too late to persuade the French to move their future tests to France?"

"All of us in the Pacific hope not. As a matter of fact, Australia, New Zealand and Japan have offered to pay for shipping everything back to France, including all the technicians and military personnel. We would hate to see them go, but it is our belief that the French will never believe they have a sufficient deterrent unless they can see it explode with their own eyes."

"Then New Zealanders and Australians harbor no bitterness toward the French?"

"Of course not. Have you ever met a Frenchman you didn't like?"

A conservative view

No joy in crime reports

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — The mail brings from the FBI its annual report, bound in policeman blue and gray, dealing with crime in the United States. It is the saddest reading of the year.

Kilpatrick

This is true even though serious crime in 1972 showed its first drop in 17 years. The picture is by no means entirely dark. Except for shoplifting, most crimes against property showed significant declines in 1972. The number of law enforcement officers killed in action dropped perceptibly. Nearly a 100 cities reported decreases in major arrests, and some of these decreases were substantial: Albany, New Bedford, Scranton, Stamford and Washington reported at least a 20 per cent decline in their index of serious crime.

Yet when full account has been given to these encouraging aspects, an appalling situation remains. One thinks of these men in blue and gray, out on patrol across the nation. Over the past 10 years, 786 law enforcement officers have been slain by felons; last year alone saw 112 killed in 35 states. One-third of them died when they were alone and unassisted, answering some such routine call as "domestic disturbance."

The nation's 268,000 law enforcement officers are struggling against crime trends that defy one's imagination. Think of these statistics, if you will, not in terms of numbers, but in terms of human passion, terror, and anguish; see these events in tears and bloodshed:

In 1962, police agencies reported 8,460 murders. Last year the figure was 18,520. There were 17,400 reported rapes in 1962. Last year saw 46,400. Robberies have more than tripled in this decade, from 110,330 to 374,600. Aggravated assaults have doubled, from 163,000 to 389,000.

The raw figures are sufficiently sobering, but they barely hint at underlying trends of profound concern. Police must cope daily with crime that is young, black, and increasingly female. Consider some figures that touch the heart:

Nearly 10 per cent of all arrests last year were arrests of boys and girls under 15 years of age. More than 80,000 arrests were made of children under 10. Charges were placed in 150,000 cases against children of 13 or 14.

Most of these youthful offenses were crimes against property, chiefly vandalism, but the 1972 records showed — for those under 15 years of age — 220 murders, 800 acts of rape, and 11,400 robberies. By the time they reach 18, thousands of these warped and violent youths have records of three or four convictions.

Blacks continue to be involved in crime in numbers far out of proportion to their 12 per cent of the population. The records of 6,114 reporting agencies show that blacks were arrested in 60 per cent of the murder cases, 67 per cent of the robberies, and 40 per cent of the rapes. The picture is especially serious among blacks under 18.

Perhaps the most shocking figures in the 1972 report have to do with the increasing involvement of young women in crime. In 1962, only 230 girls under 18 were arrested for narcotics violations. Last year the figure was 10,700. In this same period, the total number of arrests of young women has more than tripled, from 66,000 to 224,700.

The picture that emerges from all this is deeply disquieting. It is tempting to explain away some of the evidence in terms of the statistics themselves; the reporting of crime is considerably more comprehensive than it was even 10 or 15 years ago. It is reasonable to assume that in an affluent society, with more property to steal, more property will be stolen. A criminal's easy access to a handgun doubtless is a factor in soaring rates of robbery and murder.

None of this gets to the real causes. Somewhere along the line, the great teaching influences of our society — the home, the school, the church — have failed in their teaching of moral values. Adult institutions of government, politics and industry evidently have failed to provide high examples of right conduct. The FBI's report is a diagnosis of terrible social sickness — a sickness that demands forms of medication it is not getting now.

Heed expert advice on fire stations

The City Council is again divided, this time over the question of building a consolidated fire station for the central part of the city.

Mayor Jerry Jones had proposed that the city purchase land in the 500 block of Hancock for the station, a location in keeping with a recommendation by the Insurance Services Office (ISO) that a site southeast of the downtown area be selected.

On Monday night the City Council rejected the purchase proposal.

Some councilmen said they felt the city should have three fire stations instead of two. One member of the council stated that the Hancock location was inadvisable because it would be too close to the station at Fourth and Montgomery—which overlooks the fact that a consolidated station would result in the closing of that station, as well as station No. 2 downtown.

In the absence of more expert opinion, we are inclined to go along with the recommendation of the ISO, whose business it is to evaluate the fire fighting needs of cities. If this organization believes Sedalia can provide adequate protection with two stations, then this is the direction we should be moving in.

Sedalia's fire chief, in a story in today's paper, strongly endorses the ISO recommendation, and expresses disappointment at the City Council's action. He makes some telling points against the present set-up, which leaves much to be desired.

The Insurance Services Office has said it would be glad to again consult with local officials on the community's fire protection needs. The City Council may well want to take advantage of this offer.

At any rate, the idea of a central consolidated fire station should not be abandoned.

White House urged probe of Ellsberg

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — To drum up prejudice against Daniel Ellsberg while the government was preparing its case against him in 1971, the White House secretly asked a congressional committee to hold hearings on his theft of the Pentagon Papers.

The appeal for Ellsberg hearings was made by White House officials to the House Committee on Internal Security through the office of its cagey chairman, Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., in June 1971. This was the same committee which the young Rep. Richard Nixon used as his stepping stone to national publicity 25 years ago with the Alger Hiss-Pumpkin Papers case.

Ichord's aide William Hecht confirmed to us that a White House official called him and confided: "Some committee is going to investigate this matter. It should be one with genuine interest in the national security."

When several more pressing calls followed, Hecht began to wonder just who at the White House was so eager for the hearings.

"Is this something the President wants done?" Hecht inquired.

"Yes," was the immediate White House response.

Ichord cautioned his aide that with criminal charges pending against Ellsberg, he would not risk prejudicing the case with pretrial publicity unless national security arguments were overwhelming.

"The only way I'd go ahead with this is if the President personally asked me," he instructed Hecht. Dutifully, the staffer informed the White House. Sure enough, within days a call came to Ichord from his acquaintance in the oval office, Richard Nixon.

As Ichord told us with a chuckle, "I thought, 'how am I going to be able to talk him out of this?'" But President Nixon made it easy by not bringing up the probe. And when Ichord shrewdly avoided bringing it up himself, the President warmly wished Ichord a "Happy Birthday" and hung up.

FOOTNOTE: Today, the shoe is tightly on the other foot. Ex-Nixon aides face prosecution in the Watergate debacle and are now loudly complaining that their own cases are being prejudiced by congressional hearings.

SAFETY SABOTAGED: As chairman of a House committee on the infirm, hard-working Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., has labored for years to lift the burdens of the elderly, the crippled and the retarded.

But in private letters to the Department of Transportation, Brademas successfully opposed forcing bus manufacturers to make boarding safer for the aged and handicapped. Instead, he helped throw a $24 million contract to his home-town bus firm which had refused to agree to the safety measures.

To be fair, Brademas is a liberal from a conservative district where every one of the 4,000 voters at AM General's vehicle plants in South Bend, Ind., casts a vital ballot. Moreover, South Bend still shudders over the Studebaker shutdown a decade ago which threw 7,000 workers out of jobs.

Though the 602-bus contract with the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority was important for Brademas' district, it was also a watershed issue for the nation's disabled. The WMATA, as the transit authority is called, was bravely trying to set national precedents to put bus steps closer to the ground and make them less steep.

In its first big eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation with politically powerful bus makers — who do not want to change the design of their steep steps — the WMATA blinked. Under pressure from GM and FLXIBLE, Rohr Industries' bus division, the WMATA relaxed its standards for step-to-step distances from 9½ to 10 inches.

When AM General asked for still further relaxation, WMATA and its funding agency, the Department of Transportation, both stoutly refused to give another inch on the safety of the disabled.

Transportation bluntly told AM General that its proposals would cause "confusion and stumbling," particularly among "the elderly and handicapped." The result would be injuries for those least able to pay for hospitalization.

But on the very day that Transportation was rejecting AM General's spirited appeal, the company quietly summoned up Brademas, who is chief deputy House majority whip as well as chairman of a key health and education subcommittee.

Brademas swiftly moved to turn the decision around. He called Transportation's mass transport czar, Frank Herringer, and, on the same afternoon, had his top aide, lawyer Jim Monney, pressure Herringer with a second call. Herringer agreed to a delay in opening bids.

Next day, Brademas hit Herringer with a letter asking for "your careful personal attention . . . in order to insure that AM General is given every consideration it is entitled to . . ."

Next day, Transportation capitulated. It reversed its courageous stand of only a week before and informed AM General meekly that "WMATA has approved the redesign of AM General's steps."

Not surprisingly, with the specifications now tailored to AM General's measure, the firm won the $24 million contract. The losers, of course, were the tens of millions of elderly and handicapped who looked to Brademas for help.

Old man Z, who used to hold down the South seat in the auction bridge columns, still plays duplicate bridge. His bidding is old-fashioned but his dummy play is what you would expect from the hero of hundreds of auction hands.

His jump to four hearts was an overbid, but North had some extra values for him.

West opened the king of diamonds and shifted to the queen of spades. Z won in his own hand and drew trumps and ruffed his last diamond.

He remarked, "Milton Work would turn over in his grave if he saw my next play. I have an absolute sure play for my contract by cashing dummy's ace of spades, throwing West in with another spade and discarding my deuce of clubs when West leads another spade. I also can't make an overtrick that way; while if West holds five spades for his overcall I can take a club finesse and play for an overtrick."

After this peroration he finessed the club successfully, cashed his ace of clubs and led a third club. It made no difference who won it. Z was sure of his overtrick.

Impact felt around league

Big 8 schools will likely suffer financial losses

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The two-year probation slapped on the University of Oklahoma by the Big Eight Conference for recruiting violations has shaken officials at both Oklahoma and the conference's other schools.

The Sooners also were barred from television and bowl games. At the same time Wednesday, the conference placed the Sooners on probation for a similar period in basketball, but without sanctions, and ordered two assistant coaches, Wendell Mosley in football and Dennis Price in basketball, not to take part in recruiting for one year. Oklahoma was found guilty of 10 infractions in football, including falsifying the high school transcript of quarterback Kerry Jackson, three in basketball and one general violation. The Sooners, ranked No. 2 in the nation in football each of the past two years, will be unable to compete in post-season football games in 1973 and 1974 or to play televised games in 1974 and 1975.

Athletic directors at the other Big Eight schools immediately began to scrutinize their athletic budgets, aware that taking the Sooners out of the bowl and television picture would likely cost each member an estimated $125,000 to $250,000 in revenue.

The Sooners were ordered to forfeit four conference games in which Jackson played, thus stripping them of the league's championship and handing it to Nebraska. The revised standings put Oklahoma in a tie for fifth.

Jackson, a freshman last season from Galveston, Tex., Ball High School, was the only experienced quarterback on the Oklahoma squad which operates from the Wishbone formation.

Oklahoma officials, who made the first announcement of the irregularities last April, were stunned over the stiffness of the disciplinary action.

Wade Walker, the athletic director, said in Norman, Okla., that he felt the decision of the conference faculty representatives made in Chicago Tuesday and announced in Kansas City Wednesday, "was severe."

"Obviously we will accept it. Our program wasn't built on infractions. We have already taken every step possible to see that it doesn't happen again."

Hamm's Beer into slow-pitch final

Hamm's Beer defeated Turley Brothers, 9-5, in the championship semifinal bracket Wednesday night of the Sedalia Recreation Department's Slow-Pitch Softball Tournament and moved into Friday night's finals.

Dennis Henderson was credited with the victory, while Mick Selken was the loser. Enos Johnson had the game's only homer for Turley Brothers.

In the losers' bracket, Keele Paints ousted Pepsi-Cola 19-8.

In winners' bracket action tonight at 7 p.m., the Over-the-Hill Gang faces Knights of Columbus; the winner will take on Hamm's for the championship Friday.

In the losers' bracket, McDonald's takes on Rival Manufacturing, with the winner advancing to the Friday consolation finals.

Outboard championships underway in Louisiana

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — Qualifying heats for the 1973 world championship outboard races were scheduled to get underway at nearby Buhlow Lake today.

This year's races carry the joint sanction of the American Power Boat Association (APBA) and the Union of International Motorboating, marking the first time the two organizations have ever sanctioned the world championship together.

The races will have a second day of qualifying Friday before running off 18 championship heats Saturday and Sunday.

Many of the top drivers from throughout the United States are expected to enter the races. Three Swedish drivers have already entered.

Among the favorites are Bill Seebold of St. Louis, Jim Schoch of Quincy, Ill., and Jerry Simison of Fergus, Falls, S.D.

Seebold and Schoch both have captured three high-point trophies while competing in the National Outboard Association's (NOA) world championships in recent years at Buhlow Lake, while Simison has won the high-point runabout trophy the last six years here.

All three drivers are ranked at the top of the APBA list. Buhlow Lake was the site of practically every speed record established in the NOA and many of the current APBA records are expected to fall this weekend during the championship races.

Open winner isn't touted as favorite

CLEVELAND (AP) — Johnny Miller, almost forgotten in Tom Weiskopf's hot streak, scoffs at the thought he can become the first golfer to win the U.S. Open and PGA in the same year since Ben Hogan 25 years ago.

"Records don't mean that much to me. I just want to play as smart as I did in the Open," said the 26-year-old Californian.

A record round of 63 was part of Miller's winning 279 total in the Open.

Despite the major title and more than $118,000 in 1973 earnings, Miller didn't rank as a favorite among the PGA field of 148 that attacked Canterbury Golf Club's immaculate 6,852-yard course today.

The role of favorite was being shared by the sizzling Weiskopf, winner of five of his last nine starts, and Australian Bruce Crampton, the year's leading money winner.

Weiskopf, no lower than fifth in his last nine tournaments, added to his favorite's role with a seven-under-par 65 in practice Wednesday.

"I played as good as I possibly can. I never missed a green," said the tall, blond who predicted a winning score of four or five-under-par.

This is the last of the major tournaments this year, and Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, defending champion Gary Player and Arnold Palmer still are trying for their first victory in 1973.

The field, shooting for a first prize of $40,000 in the $200,000 tournament, dwindled to 148 Wednesday with the withdrawals of Doug Sanders and Walt Burkemo, the 1953 PGA winner.

A cut to the low 70 and ties will be made after the second round Friday for the nationally televised (ABC) rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Circuit court disallows an appeal by the LPGA

NEW YORK (AP) — Golfer Jane Blalock scored what may be the biggest victory of her career Wednesday, and she didn't even have to use a golf club.

When a circuit court disallowed a Ladies Professional Golf Association appeal of a decision against its lawsuit last year, Miss Blalock took one step closer to an astronomical amount of money.

She filed an anti-trust action against the Ladies Professional Golfer's Association and five individual members of the Association's executive board after her suspension for alleged cheating last year. Asking for $5 million in damages, Miss Blalock contended that the LPGA suspension violated the anti-trust laws and constituted a group boycott, because the five board members were in direct competition with her and profited by her absence from the tour.

Lawyer John Russell, who represents the Portsmouth, N.H. golfer said, "It seems certain that our side has prevailed on the basic question whether the LPGA's suspension of Miss Blalock was lawful."

She was suspended on May 31, 1972 for allegedly mis-marking her ball on the putting surface. After missing one tournament, Miss Blalock's lawyers secured a restraining order which allowed her to rejoin the tour.

Prairie Home upsets Stahl's in district game

(Democrat-Capital Service)

MARSHALL — Stahl's Specialty Co. of Kingsville, the defending champion of the district fast-pitch softball tournament, will have to come back through the losers' bracket if it is to win its second championship. Stahl's suffered a 7-5 upset loss to Prairie Home here Wednesday, when Bob Fultz' two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth produced a 7-5 win.

Prairie Home's Ken Parkhurst went the distance for the win, while Fran Barker was charged with the loss.

In the losers' bracket, Blackburn needed eight innings to subdue Green Ridge, 7-5. Green Ridge was eliminated with the setback. Kurt Mueller picked up the Blackburn win; Larry Yunt was the loser.

Tonight's games find Pat O'Connor Chevy-Buick meeting the Marshall Merchants in an upper bracket quarterfinal game at 7:30 p.m. The nightcap pits Whiteman Air Force Base against Saline County. Implement in a losers' bracket tilt.

Advance Sales increase

Tickets for the five days of automobile racing at the Missouri State Fair, which opens next week, are available at the State Fair ticket center, or by written request care of Missouri State Fair, P. O. Box 111, Sedalia, Mo.

Al Sweeney, who is in charge of the Fair's auto racing promotions, said tickets would remain on sale throughout the Fair.

"We are noting increases in sales each day," Sweeney said Wednesday afternoon. "But we still have a number of good seats available for all events," he added.

The State Fair championship sprint car races will open the 1973 schedule of events at 2 p.m. Aug. 18, on the half-mile dirt track.

Drivers from throughout the Midwest will be vying for more than $36,000 in cash prizes.

Ex-OCU cage coach filed a complaint

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Former Oklahoma City University basketball coach Abe Lemons acknowledged Wednesday he had filed a complaint with the National Collegiate Athletic Association about Oklahoma University's basketball recruiting practices.

The Big Eight Conference put the OU basketball program on probation for two years Wednesday and said assistant Coach Dennis Price cannot do any recruiting for a year.

Lemons' complaint apparently stemmed from a long-standing feud with former OU Coach John Macleod while Lemons was at OCU.

Macleod left OU last spring to become head coach of the professional Phoenix Suns, and Lemons became athletic director and basketball coach at Pan American in Edinburg, Tex.

The story of the complaint came out Wednesday at the state high school coaches convention.

New OU Coach Lester Lane identified Lemons as having complained to the NCAA.

"He told me after I got the job at OU that he had written the NCAA to withdraw his protest," Lane told newsmen.

"He said it wasn't anything aimed particularly at me or at

Denny, but I think he and John had some problems."

Lemons was at the convention to lecture.

"That's exactly right," he said, and added that some of Macleod's recruiting practices had been affecting Lemons' program at OCU.

Bissette is tough in relief

WHITEMAN, AFB — Offutt, Neb., Air Force Base defeated Davis-Monthan, Ariz., Air Force Base in the winners' bracket semifinal game here Wednesday night, 8-4, of the Strategic Air Command's Fast-Pitch Softball Tournament.

Winning pitcher Bill Bissette of Whiteman, who was added to the Offutt roster after the district finals here a week ago, came in with none out and runners at second and third in the bottom of the fourth. He struck out the side, preserving the Offutt lead and ending Davis-Monthan's threat.

In the four innings in which Bissette pitched, he recorded 10 of the 12 outs via strikeouts.

In losers' bracket action, Barksdale, La., ousted Wurtsmith, Mich., 8-6. But Barksdale was eliminated themselves by an identical score from Ellsworth, S.D.

Tonights contests find Ellsworth and Davis-Monthan meeting at 7:30 p.m. for the other championship berth. Offutt plays the winner of that game for the title at 9:30 p.m.

Should Offutt lose, a second and deciding game would be needed.

Orlando Cepeda ignites 'double trouble' for KC

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Orlando Cepeda will take watermelon over swatting a baseball for doubles any time.

Cepeda, one of the oldest of the Boston Red Sox, was the club's designated hitter Wednesday night in a 9-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals and contributed a major league record-tying four doubles. He drove in six runs.

He got his watermelon, too. Afterward.

Of the designated hitter rule, the 35-year-old Cepeda said:

"I hate it. It's a bad rule. If it wasn't for it, I'd be eating watermelon all the time and never playing."

"The record doesn't mean anything to me. I feel happy for myself but the big thing is we won the game."

Boston Manager Eddie Kasko said he wasn't surprised at Cepeda's performance and predicted the race in the American League's East Division will continue to be tight right down to the end.

"We know Cepeda's a good hitter, bad knees and all," said Kasko, whose Red Sox kept step with first-place Detroit and remained 1½ games behind the Tigers. "Everybody in the league knows it."

"This race is the same as it's been for the last three months and it will stay that way for the final six weeks."

Cepeda's bases-loaded double in the first inning off Paul Splittorff, 14-6, cleared the bases after Luis Aparicio reached first on an error and Reggie Smith and Carl Yastrzemski walked in succession.

He touched off a four-run uprising in the fifth with a run-scoring double and knocked home two more with a two-base hit in the eighth. His other double led off the fourth.

Cepeda became the first American Leaguer to crack four doubles in a regulation game since Billy Bruton of Detroit in 1963.

Kansas City, thanks to Detroit's triumph over the Oakland A's, clung to its lead over the A's in the AL West by four percentage points despite the defeat.

The only real excitement for the Royals were John Mayberry's 23rd home run, a 460-foot shot in the sixth, and Manager Jack McKeon's ejection in the fifth. Mayberry also doubled home two runs in the first.

McKeon was kicked out by Umpire Jim Evans after a nose-to-nose shouting match.

"He was missing too many pitches," McKeon said of Evans. "Splittorff had Smith and Cepeda struck out in that inning they got all those runs." Smith and Cepeda both scored in the inning.

"Chalk it up," McKeon said of the defeat, first ever for the Royals by Luis Tiant, 15-9. "We got to get beat once in a while. Oakland got beat, too, and we're still in first place."

Braves use long ball

'Sick' Cards slip a little more

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "If they'd been playing in Atlanta they'd had six home runs," said Red Schoendienst with resignation.

As it was the Atlanta Braves riddled St. Louis pitching Wednesday night, but only two of the blows cleared the wall in a 4-1 victory.

Both came in a four-run fifth inning that handed the Cardinals their third straight defeat and fifth loss in eight games.

"We're a little tired from all the flu we've been having and colds," conceded Schoendienst, whose club's edge in the National League East Division slipped to 4½ games.

"We've got to have good pitching," the Redbirds' manager added. "With all the hitting we get, or don't get, we just don't have any easy games."

Rich Folkers, struggling for control, battled Atlanta 6-foot-4 Ron Schuler evenly for four innings until the Braves explosion.

Then Mike Lum lifted a Folkers curve high over the right field wall and with two out Darrell Evans was walked.

Henry Aaron, slammed his first triple since 1971 off Jose Cruz's glove in deep right-center on the next pitch, and Dusty Baker capped the burst with a two-run homer.

"The way they were hitting the ball, a lot more of them would have gone out if they'd been at home," said Schoendienst.

"The Braves have some kind of lineup for hitters. If they just had a little more pitching of the kind they got tonight they wouldn't be so far back."

Schuler, 7-6, coasted to the victory by averting walks and any combination of St. Louis hits except for Mike Tyson's single and Lou Brock's double in the bottom of the fifth.

"He drank some ice water between innings like a fool and got cramps," said Braves Manager Eddie Matthews, who spelled the right-hander with knuckleballer Phil Niekro in the ninth.

Lower's moves up in R-G skeet loop

Lower's Moving and Storage posted a high team total of 110x125 and moved from fourth to second in the Sedalia Rod and Gun Club's skeet competition Wednesday night.

Thrifty Finance retained the lead in the standings by one point over Lower's, 541-540.

High gun honors were shared by Charles Vanderlinden and Tommy Coffman, both of whom recorded perfect 25x25's. Gary Bernboom, Bill Savage, George Shawder and Joe Bode followed with 24x25's.

Standings
1. Thrifty Finance, 541; 2. Lower's Moving and Storage, 540; 3. G-Disco, 539; 4. Cash Hardware, 537; 5. Broadway Realty, 536; 6. Wolf Construction, 535.

Thomas' 74 low score in Jr. play

Mark Thomas' four-over 74 was the low score of the Sedalia Country Club's Junior Golf Tournament Wednesday. His total brought him top honors in the 15-year-old boys division.

Thomas carded back to back 37's in recording his first-place finish.

Greg Beykirch made the turn 39 and came in with 38 for a seven-over-par 77 in winning the 16-year-old boys division.

Scott Gardner finished runner-up to Thomas, while Matt Stephenson was second in the 16-year-old division.

Beykirch's brother, Bill, won first place in the 14-year-old boys flight with an 85, 10 strokes ahead of runner-up Dave Malm. Poco Wesner finished third.

Bobby Childers won the 13-year-old division, finishing ahead of Del Tagtmeyer.

Top honors in the 12-year-old flight went to Jim Finley; Steve Menefee won the 11-year-old division.

Steve Colfelt, Stafford Swearingen and John Swearingen captured first in the 10, 9 and 8-year-old divisions respectively.

In the girls division, another Beykirch, Mary, captured the family's third trophy of the day winning the 11-year-old flight over Julie Labus and Ann Hays.

Lori Hartzler and Dana Finley placed first in the 9 and 8-year-old divisions respectively.

Club professional Lew Hargis noted that the next tournament at the Sedalia Country Club is the men's stroke play championship, which will be held Aug. 18-19. Hargis said that entries would be accepted until the opening day of the event.

Gerlecz moves closer to .300

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. — Steve Gerlecz, assigned by the Pittsburgh Pirates to their Class-A farm club here, inched his batting average closer to the .300 level here last week with a five-for-13 performance.

The 358 mark for the week boosted his season's average to .248, the highest it's been since the season opened in late June.

Gerlecz, son of Mrs. Frank M. Gerlecz, 2511 West 11th, played for Smith-Cotton High School and the University of Missouri prior to turning professional.

Ann Landers

Dinner table no place for nosebleed

Dear Ann Landers: People used to whisper about homosexuality. Now they are hollering about it. Will you please do the world a favor and tell them not to jump to conclusions? What appears at a glance to be a normal display of affection.

Last weekend a close friend and I went out for a cocktail. I had a bad day and, as luck would have it, two men joined us — or rather, joined her. I was in a depressed mood and excused myself to go to the ladies' room. For some mysterious reason I began to cry. My friend came in shortly after and when she saw me, she became upset and asked if I was angry with her. I told her my depression had nothing to do with her and that I loved her like a sister. She put her arms around me and said, "I love you, too."

At that very moment a woman came in. In a voice filled with disgust she snapped, "I wish you Gay Libbers would stay in your own homes." We were speechless.

Please inform your readers that physical contact doesn't necessarily carry a sexual connotation. A hug can be a reassuring and comforting gesture. In fact, I felt closer to the whole human race when my friend embraced me, and believe me, I'm as normal as they come.

I love you, too, Ann, for letting me get this off my chest.

— Straight In Corpus Christi
Dear S. in C.C.: According to the behavioral scientists, those who are the least tolerant and the most critical of homosexuals invariably have serious doubts about their own sexuality. Thanks for writing, Sweetie.

Dear Ann Landers: I bet a friend of mine $5 that I could make up a letter and do such a good job of it that you'd print it in your column. The bet was made on March 15. My deadline passed the first of this month.

I knocked my brains out composing what I thought was the perfect letter for Ann Landers' column. You didn't fall for it. I'm really surprised. Why? How do you spot the phony? — Poorer But Wiser

Dear P. But W.: Phony letters are like phony people — stilted, unnatural and they send out vibes that something is out of kilter. I guess you might say they try too hard and it just doesn't come off. Moreover, those phony letters, like phony people, are a crashing bore and a waste of time.

Dear Ann Landers: The other night I dined out with two close friends. We selected a very good restaurant. Halfway through the meal Agnes developed a nosebleed. Instead of excusing herself to go lie down in the ladies' room until the bleeding stopped, she said, "It's not too bad. I don't want this food to get cold." She remained at the table and her nose bled through her handkerchief and napkin. My appetite was ruined.

On the way home, after we dropped Agnes off, I asked the other girl how she managed to eat everything on her plate. She said, "It didn't bother me at all." She saw nothing whatever wrong with Agnes' behavior. Am I nuts? — Ann Arbor

Dear Ann: If you're nuts, so am I. Anyone who would remain at a dinner table with a

Hall takes position with Rival

William Hall, 2901 Daryl Drive, who will resign as Sedalia's economic development director effective Aug. 31, has been named corporate manager of community and industrial relations for Rival Manufacturing Co., it was announced Thursday.

Hall will assume his new duties Sept. 1. Rival's multi-plant locations, resulting in greater decentralization, was the reason for the company's focus on community and industrial relations, according to I. H. Miller, Rival's president.

Citing Rival's growth in recent years, Miller said, "We have not always been able to do justice to these important areas." In addition to its factory and home office in Kansas City, Rival has production plants in Sedalia, Clinton, Sweet Springs, Hannibal and Morton, Ill. The company produces electric and non-electric housewares.

Hall's headquarters will be in Sedalia and he will share some of his responsibility with David Wunderlich, personnel and office manager of the Clinton plant.

Hall has been economic development director in Sedalia since 1965.

nosebleed is grossly ill-mannered and just plain uncouth.

Going to a wedding? Giving one? Or standing up in one? Even if you're already married Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" will answer questions about today's weddings. Selective Service plan moving ahead

(Democrat-Capital Service)

VERSAILLES — The Selective Service's plan of collocation moved nearer to completion this week with the removal of the county selective service office here to the area office in the Federal Building, 319 South Lamine, Sedalia.

The collocation system is a plan under which the Selective Service will operate on a standby basis, continuing to register and classify registrants and maintaining a pool of young men ready for examination and induction in case of national emergency.

Bob Merrick, state director, emphasized that only local board records are being moved from county offices, and that in the case of Morgan County, board members James D. Hunter, Kenneth C. James, Joseph J. Thomas, Melvin Phillip Dale and George A. Williams would continue to perform their duties.

Merrick stressed that Selective Service law still requires young men to register one month before or after their 18th birthday. To avoid driving to Sedalia for this purpose Morgan County youths may check with local volunteer registrars who have been appointed in each of the county's high schools.

These registrars include: Lyle K. Chamberlain, Versailles; Jack L. Jackson, Mrs. Le Anne Dale and Merrell A. Taylor, Stover. Those not attending these schools will be registered by Richard Hutchinson, Morgan County clerk, at the courthouse here.

The Sedalia office, 816-826-3546, is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, according to Merrick.

LaMonte Lodge No. 574 AF&AM will meet in stated communication Friday, Aug. 10 at 8 p.m. Regular business meeting. Elmer Patterson, W.M. R. B. Burke, Sec'y

Lou Harris survey

American people favor cutoff to Cambodia bombing action

By LOUIS HARRIS

By 64 to 22 per cent, a sizable majority of the American people favor action by Congress cutting off all money for U.S. military operations in Cambodia by Aug. 15th. However, when asked how they would react if President Nixon requested a 30-day extension of an end to U.S. operations in Cambodia, by a narrow 45-43 per cent, a plurality of the public favored giving the chief executive more time to negotiate a settlement.

These results are significant because they illustrate that public belief in Nixon's ability to handle foreign policy has remained relatively high, despite the erosion of confidence in him personally as a result of the Watergate investigation. This fact is confirmed in other Harris survey results, indicating a 65-26 per cent positive rating for the President on "handling relations with Russia," 60-29 per cent positive standing in "handling relations with China," and an even higher 68-30 per cent rating on "working for peace."

The public's strong desire to end all U.S. involvement in Indochina, following agreement to end the war in Vietnam, was evident in the question dealing with Congress's vote to cut off funds for Cambodian operations. Between July 18th and 22nd, a national cross-section of 1,485 households was asked:

"Did you favor or oppose action by Congress cutting off all money for U.S. military operations in Cambodia by Aug. 15, 1973?"

	Total Public	%
Favor	64
Oppose	22
Not sure	14

Although he made it clear that he did not like the action of Congress on Cambodia, Nixon nonetheless went along with the unprecedented move by not vetoing it. Cambodia still remains the one part of Indochina in which no immediate signs of a settlement appear in sight. U.S. planes have regularly conducted heavy bombing raids in response to continued communist attacks in the Phnom Penh capital area.

Many of the reasons cited by people for favoring such a cut-off of funds reflect the sad memory of the American people of the U.S. experience in Vietnam. As a college student in Urbana, Illinois put it, "I thought the war was over. We should stop that useless fighting by Americans right away. Haven't we learned it was the wrong war in the wrong place?"

Nonetheless, public aversion to continued U.S. bombings in Cambodia is not so great that a slim plurality would not refuse to give the president 30 more days to try to negotiate a Cambodian settlement. The cross-section was asked:

"President Nixon went along with Congress on cutting off money for U.S. military operations in Cambodia by Aug. 15. Suppose the President asked Congress to extend that deadline for another 30 days to have time to negotiate a settlement in Cambodia, would you favor or oppose extending that deadline?"

	Favor	Oppose	Not Sure
Nationwide	45	43	12
By Age
Under 30	42	48	10
30-49	44	45	11
50 and over	46	39	15
By Education
8th grade or less	42	34	24
High School	46	41	13
College	42	51	7
By Politics
Republican	53	39	8
Democrat	40	45	15
Independent	44	47	9

Although the divisions are relatively close among all groups, the patterns of attitudes on extension of the cut-off of funds for Cambodia parallel the old schisms that plagued the country throughout the Vietnam war. Opposition to any extension can be found among the young, the best educated, among Democrats and Independents. Support for an extension ran strongest among older people, the least well educated, and Republicans.

When asked what lay back of their views on such an extension of the Cambodian cut-off of U.S. funds, the central reasons given for favoring such a presidential request, by 28 per cent of the public, was in essence, "The president knows best if he needs extra time to settle the war." As a white collar clerk in Rockford, Illinois said, "Nixon knew what to do to get the Vietnam war ended, and I'm sure he understands best how to end the Cambodian part of the war. Even though I'm worried about Watergate, I still trust him on ending that war once and for all."

Opposition to granting such an extension to Nixon centers on the reason given by 33 per cent of the public, "We've been there long enough, that war was a mistake, and let's get out now for good." A systems engineer in San Jose, California put it this way, "That damn war has gone on long enough. We did what we could, and it was a disaster. Get out and be done with it. More bombings are immoral and will do no good."

Nixon rose to heights of public confidence after the final settlement in Vietnam and the return of the prisoners of war. His standing has since come down precipitously with the Watergate investigations. The public would like to think of Mr. Nixon as a leader seeking peace in the world. The erosion of confidence in his foreign policy capabilities has not been appreciable. But this cannot be expected to be sustained unless a prompt and full resolution of public doubts about his involvement in Watergate is forthcoming. It is significant that, by 54-38 per cent, a majority agrees with the statement that "The president was right in saying it is more important for him to spend his time working for peace," although this majority is down from a comparable 63-24 per cent majority who felt that way in May.

At the Watergate hearings Aug. 1, H. R. Haldeman was asked about $400,000 in cash that was spent by the White House on private polling. He said all of it was paid for in cash through Herbert Kalmbach. When asked what organizations the White House used for private polling, he said ORC. When asked what other organizations were used, he said he was not sure, but he thought that the Harris organization was one of them. Harris then issued this statement to the press:

At no time has the Harris organization conducted any private political poll for any private source since 1963. Since then, our firm has never had any business to do with Mr. Kalmbach, Mr. Haldeman or any other Republican or Democratic source.
